THE APPLIED RESEARCH CONSORTIUM

An industry-academia alliance for the greater good.

VISION

To discover, collaborate and improve the industry together.

MISSION

To build collaborative projects between faculty, students and industry to tackle challenges from regional, national and international perspectives.

Benefits of ARC Consortium Membership

Access to CERC Resources

Access to CERC's labs, classrooms and technical resources for events, collaborations and research.

Opportunity to support specific research projects through Research Assistantship sponsorship, direct-hire internships or in-kind staff collaboration.

Annual Meeting

Annual member's only meeting to discuss research projects and applications with faculty and students. Active project teams present interim reports for members only.

Project Technical Committee

ARC members work with faculty and students to conduct applied research projects. Staff participation by industry partners varies project-by-project depending on project needs and member interest.

Exclusive Access to Early Research Findings and Results

The Center will host a password-protected website exclusively for ARC members to access interim presentations and final reports before they are published to the public at the CERC Annual Conference.

Recognition at CERC Annual Conference and Free Conference Passes

ARC members and sponsored projects are featured at the CERC Annual Conference. We invite members to display posters highlighting their contributions to industry innovation and recent achievements. ARC members are listed as CERC Conference sponsors throughout the event.

Recognition

ARC members are recognized for their support and contribution to innovation on websites and in publications of CERC, the Department, the College and the University.

Which Sponsorship Level is Right for Your Organization?

Industry partners support CERC operations and research with an annual membership fee.
